

Worksheet 3

The Pearl Dragon

What Would You Do?

'At last, Chang came to the temple of the god. Timidly he knocked on the gates of the temple. And when he explained his mission, he was let in. There, in a huge room, on a giant throne, sat an old, old man, dressed like an emperor. He called the young man forward. "You may ask three questions," said the god. "Any more, and I cannot reply. Think carefully."'

1. Do you think Chang did the right thing by asking the question for the other characters and not his own?

2. Why do you think this?

3. Would you have done the same as Chang? Why/Why not?

4. Imagine that are meeting the great god from the story. Which three questions would you ask?
