The Rainbow Serpent

Recreating the Scene

'It opened its great mouth, and out darted a forked tongue. It went after the people ... Some leapt high and bounced away, and they turned into kangaroos. Some hid under rocks, and they became tortoises. Some climbed the nearest trees and clung to them, and they became koalas. Some threw themselves into the air, and flapped away, and they were birds. Some dived into the pools, and they became platypuses. And some stayed completely still, and they turned into trees.'
